THE MILITARY COMMANDERS.

By a law enacted at the last regular session of Congress, and which was recited at large in these columns a few days ago, it is provided that neither of the commanders of the five military districts into which the insurrectionary States are divided, shall be removed without the consent of the General of the armies. Hence it will be seen that the order issued by the President on the 17th inst., removing General SHERIDAN from the command of the Fifth district, was inoperative and void until the consent of Gen. GRANT was obtained. In point of law and fact the removal was made by General GRANT, and not by the President.

In his order removing General SHERIDAN, General GRANT especially directs his successor, General THOMAS, to "continue to execute all orders he may find in force in the Fifth district, at the time of assuming command of it, unless authorized by the General of the Army to annul, alter or modify them." This would seem, on the face of it, to be conclusive evidence that General GRANT approves of what General SHERIDAN has done, and consented to disgrace him simply to please the President. If Gen. GRANT shall not feel constrained to speedily direct the annullment or material modification of General SHERIDAN'S orders, he will certainly stand exposed to the censure of removing an officer for doing his duty in the exercise of a sound judgment.

Gen. GRANT, as we showed on a recent occasion, was not assignable, by virtue of his military rank, to the administration of the War Department. That place is a purely civil appointment, to which any citizen is eligible. There are strong reasons of propriety why high civil and military offices should not be held simultaneously by the same individual. In accepting the post of Secretary of War, Gen. GRANT enabled the President to do what he long sought to accomplish, but in vain, that is, the removal of Mr. STANTON, and within a week after entering upon the duties of his new appointment, he assented to the removal of General SHERIDAN, to prevent which Congress had vested extraordinary discretion in his hands.

We regard this complication as unfortunate for Gen. GRANT and for the loyal masses of the republic.

SHARSWOOD VS. JACKSON.

In his famous proclamation against the South Carolina Nullifiers in December, 1832, General JACKSON said:

"I consider, then, the power to annul a law of the United States, assumed by one State, INCOMPATIBLE WITH THE EXISTENCE OF THE UNION, CONTRADICTED EXPRESSLY BY THE LETTER OF THE CONSTITUTION, UNAUTHORIZED BY ITS SPIRIT, INCONSISTENT WITH EVERY PRINCIPLE ON WHICH IT WAS FOUNDED, AND DESTRUCTIVE OF THE GREAT OBJECT FOR WHICH IT WAS FORMED."

This was in 1832. Many yet living remember how the country rocked with excitement and trembled with alarm at the audacious pretensions and the treasonable measures of JOHN C. CALHOUN and his followers; and they remember how all parties exulted when JACKSON crushed that incipient treason under his heel. Democrats and Whigs clasped hands and united their voices in support of the brave old man and his proclamation.

But there was, even in Pennsylvania, a small band of politicians who drew their inspiration, not from JEFFERSON or JACKSON, but from JOHN C. CALHOUN, and of this small band was Judge SHARSWOOD, now a candidate for the Supreme Judgeship. After nullification was crushed he remained the same, and in an oration delivered in April, 1834, he re-affirmed the cardinal doctrine of nullification, secession and rebellion in the following emphatic terms:

"We come back to our starting place, and finding nothing in the Constitution establishing any final judge of the enumerated powers, prohibitions, and reserved rights, it must rest upon the admitted principles of general law, in cases of compact between parties having no common superior. EACH STATE HAS THE RIGHT TO JUDGE FOR ITSELF OF THE COMPACT, AND TO CHOOSE FOR ITSELF THE MOST PROPER AND EFFICIENT REMEDIES."

Is it safe at a time like this to entrust supreme judicial powers to a man who entertains such opinions as these? We grant that he may hold them honestly and sincerely; but the more honestly and sincerely they are entertained the more dangerous they are. JACKSON was honest and sincere in his opposition to such views, and his honesty, more than anything else, gave him power to put those down who attempted in 1832 to carry them into practice; and had JACKSON been where BUCHANAN was in 1860 we should have had no rebellion.

—Inquiries making in Europe by American agents with reference to raising Cashmere goats and manufacturing the wool and hair in the United States, encourage a belief that success would reward efforts in this direction. Mr. J. S. Diehl, now in Europe collecting information on this subject, speaks of numerous fabrics in the Paris Exhibition made from the goat's fleece, with the looms, cards and other machinery employed in their manufacture, and expresses confidence that this department of industry can "be made more successful in the United States than in Europe." Specimens of Cashmere, Thibet, and Angora goat's wool have been forwarded to Washington. American specimens of Angora fleece, exhibited to the manufacturers in Leeds, England, were pronounced "the most beautiful they had seen." Similar expressions were heard in Vienna, where the most improved Jacquard looms are in operation. Machinery of this description can be readily purchased at a moderate cost, and there is no lack of workmen to assist in introducing this branch of manufactures into the new world. We may safely predict that in a few years elegant fabrics will be made in the United States from the wool of the Cashmere goat of our own production.

—Col. Alexander Von Shrader died suddenly in New Orleans on the 5th, of brain fever, brought on by the fatigues on his recent trip up Red River. Col. Von Shrader was by profession a soldier, having been educated for the military life in Europe, where he served from boyhood until the breaking out of the Rebellion in the United States. He served with distinction throughout the late war as Inspector General upon the staff of Major General Thomas, he being a lieutenant colonel, and up to brigadier general of volunteers. With General Thomas he made all the campaigns of the Tennessee, and was one of the most patient and valuable officers in the Inspector's Department of the United States Army.

—The Chicago Board of Trade has declared that the members who were arrested and to whose case we referred in a former issue, have done nothing inconsistent with fair dealing and usual commercial practice; and have instructed the Directors of the Board to employ counsel for their defense. Senator Mack, who was the author of that part of the bill under which the prosecutions have been brought, appeared before the board and declared that the law was not intended, and could not be construed to interfere with the ordinary course of trade; the intention was to correct certain abuses indulged in by grain speculators who had no capital to trade with and whose only business was betting on prices.

—Judge Walton, of Augusta, Me., has decided that hop beer was not intoxicating within the meaning of the statute, and that any kind of beer, which has to be drunk in enormous quantities to produce intoxication, does not come under the head of "intoxicating liquors," as specified in the liquor law.

THE RECENT REMOVALS.

Another "Conversation" With the President—Gen. Grant and Secretary Stanton—Why Gen. Sheridan Was Removed.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NEW YORK, August 24.—The Washington correspondent of the Boston Post, in an account of a conversation with the President, says: The President remarked that at one time General Grant strongly intimated that unless Secretary Stanton was removed he should be compelled to leave here, as he could be of no possible use, in view of Stanton's overbearing and dictatorial conduct. The President advised him to have a talk with the Secretary of War, and perhaps they would understand each other better. He agreed, however, with the General that Stanton ought to be removed, and inquired of Grant if he would take charge of the department in the event of a change. The latter promptly expressed his entire willingness to do so. I referred to a rumor that the General had eventually protested against the removal. The President frankly said such was the case—that the General had written him a very kind but earnest note, in which he had intimated his fears of anarchy, if not revolution, should Secretary Stanton be superceded; yet, as he could not appreciate the General's fears, he had directed the change.

The same correspondent states the President said Gen. Sheridan was removed because of his disrespectful telegram of June 2d, and for the exercise of powers he did possess, and the exercise of his legitimate powers in an arbitrary and offensive manner. He said the removal of Governor Wells was entirely uncalled for and unjustifiable. On the other hand, Gen. Sheridan had endeavored to execute law as a partizan and had adopted Radicalism as the only true test of loyalty. His sole purpose seemed to be to secure negro supremacy and degrade the whites, and for such conduct I deemed it my duty to remove him from that command.

Gen. Sickles to be Removed, Succeeded by Gen. Canby, and Mustered out of his Brevet Rank.

NEW YORK, August 25.—The Times' Washington special says the President yesterday announced that Gen. Sickles would be removed and succeeded by Gen. Canby. Gen. Sickles will be mustered out of his brevet rank, which leaves him a Colonel in the Veteran Reserve Corps.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—The subject of a National Organ was discussed this morning, several delegates taking part. On motion the whole subject was indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Evans offered the following, which was adopted:

WHEREAS, The efforts of the working classes of Europe, to obtain political power and to improve their status socially and otherwise, and to throw off the servitude in which they have been and are now placed by the institutions and laws under which they live, afford a gratifying indication of the progress of justice, enlightenment and the sentiments of humanity; therefore, be it

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, August 24.—A dispatch from General Sheridan, dated New Orleans, August 19, says: "The yellow fever has abated but very little at Galveston. At Indianola it has been very bad, and has interfered with the public service from the stampede and flight of employees. In this city it has yet only taken hold of two companies, and there are now some signs of improvement. We have four officers down. Lieut. Smith, son of C. F. Smith, is very dangerously ill. Lieut. Aseph, of the engineers, took the disease from here to Fort Morgan, and there died. A telegram dated 21st announces a change for the better in Lieut. Smith's case.

Another telegram, dated 23d, says there is much distress among the officers and families at Galveston from yellow fever. Mrs. Col. A. Best is dead, also Lieut. Kirkman's wife. Col. A. Best and Mrs. Dr. Adams are very low. Col. Howell is better. General Mower is better. Five other officers are down with it here, but they are all but one doing well.

SEVERE BATTLE WITH INDIANS.

Eight Hundred Savages Attacked in their Villages—A Three Day's Fight—The Troops Repulsed—Another Battle Expected.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

ST. LOUIS, August 24.—A dispatch from Fort Hays, Kansas, dated on the 23d inst. says: A courier has just arrived from Captain Ames with dispatches to Captain Corbin, to the effect that Ames had a severe battle with eight hundred Indians under "Satanta" on the Republican river. Their village was two miles long. Captain Ames charged twice through their wigwams. The savages fought desperately. Three of our men were killed and twenty-five wounded. Thirty horses were lost. The Indians lost severely, but finally repulsed our troops. Our dead were left on the field. There was an immense amount of stolen stock in the Indian village. The savages surrounded our troops and the fight lasted three days. Two of the men killed belonged to the Kansas Cavalry, and one to the 10th Regulars. Capt. Ames had one hundred and twenty-five men. A strong force under Major Elliott, and some Kansas Cavalry under Major Moore, leave for the Indian village in light marching order. A severe battle is anticipated. We have not enough troops here.

It will be remembered that the assortment found here is not from Eastern auction houses but has been selected direct from manufacturers who deal in such articles as will prove serviceable and durable. Call in and see for yourselves.

Thanks.—We are indebted to Chill Hazzard, Esq., the able and accomplished editor of the Republican, for courtesies extended us during a recent visit to Monongahela City. Mr. Hazzard has the weight of the Post Office of that borough, a commercial business, and a lively journal on his shoulders, and yet he has time to extend a warm welcome to all "knights of the quill" who may visit the enterprising town of Monongahela.

Hon. F. D. Kinnear, Attorney at Law, a resident of Franklin, Pa., who suffered from defective hearing, buzzing noises in the head, and discharge from the ears, for nearly twenty-five years, acknowledges his recovery to the skill of Dr. Aborn.

Monongahela Valley Railroad.

Meeting in favor of the Saw Mill Run Route—Addresses, &c., &c.

Pursuant to adjournment the friends of the proposed railway via Saw Mill Run to Monongahela City held a public meeting at the Town Hall, Monongahela City, on Saturday afternoon last. It was largely attended by representatives of the neighborhoods which will reap the benefits of the new route, and by enterprising men of wealth, who are seconding the project with liberal subscriptions towards the capital stock, believing no better investment can be made. At a few minutes past two o'clock the organization was effected by calling Smith Gaston, Esq., to the chair, after which Messrs. Isaac King, Archibald Darragh and David Allen were chosen Vice Presidents, and Chill Hazzard, Esq., editor of the Monongahela Republican, and Benjamin Lytle were designated as Secretaries.

REPORT OF SURVEY.

Hon. George V. Lawrence announced in a brief manner that the object of the meeting was to receive the report of Dr. Stilley, the Civil Engineer, who had just finished the survey of a certain railway route from Pittsburgh to Monongahela City via Saw Mill Run. As the report was ready for reading, the Speaker gave way to Dr. Stilley, who proceeded to read the document.

The route was found to be some eighteen miles from Pittsburgh to Monongahela City, was favorable for the construction of a road, with the exception, perhaps, that at several points tunnels, to avoid heavy grades, would have to be constructed. The latter might be obviated, however, by increasing the length of the road several miles. The remainder of the grades were equally as favorable as any on the other roads of Western Pennsylvania. The route was decidedly shorter than the one proposed to follow the South bank of the Monongahela river, and the territory penetrated was rich with undeveloped coal fields. The report was favorable to this route and by comparisons and statistics based on facts, not theories, demonstrated its superiority over any as yet proposed. (We regret that the paper was withheld from publication, as Dr. Stilley and the Committee on Survey desired time to revise previous to laying it before the public.)

REMARKS OF DR. L. OLDSHUE.

At the conclusion of the reading of the highly interesting report of the surveyor, Dr. L. Oldshue, Chairman of the Committee on Survey, was called to address the meeting. He stated that at the first meeting of the friends of the Monongahela Valley Railroad via Saw Mill Run, which was held on the 9th of July, in Pittsburgh, a committee of ten gentlemen, including himself as chairman, was appointed to solicit subscriptions conditional that the road be constructed on the shortest route. The committee was empowered to employ a corps of practical and competent civil engineers to make a careful survey of the proposed route from Pittsburgh to Monongahela City. The committee immediately proceeded with its work and obtained voluntary subscriptions sufficient to warrant the commencement of the survey. Dr. Stilley, chief of a corps of experienced surveyors, was entrusted with the work, and the report of his labor thus far has just been read. It clearly shows that with a single exception, tunneling Coal Hill, the route is as good, if not better, than the one along the river side, and decidedly shorter.

The project, continued the speaker, daily finds new friends. At the recent meeting at Library, which was favored with the presence of many persons, the route developed strength in the promised aid and influence of men of standing and wealth. Hon. T. J. Bigham there proclaimed that the Saw Mill Run route was, in his opinion, "by far the most practical one suggested." He promised it encouragement and support in any manner within his power, while Major Russel Errett, a prominent Pittsburgher, similarly pledged himself to lend all his influence in favor of the enterprise. Hon J. K. Moorhead, Congressman from Allegheny county, freely expressed himself on the feasibility of the overland route, and said he was heartily in favor of the completion of the enterprise. Hon. George V. Lawrence likewise spoke in high commendation of the route, as the railroad was a thing of necessity and that common sense should demonstrate that the shortest route should be adopted. Now, gentlemen, with these solid men in its favor, and committed to the enterprise, there can be no good reason why the good work should not go on. In behalf of the committee, they are thanked, and it is to be trusted that others will follow in the worthy example they have set. The gentlemen named well know the cost of internal improvements, but they are equally aware of the immense benefits realized from, and the value of the same. Their influence is a tower of strength in itself, and although they may not put their hands in their pockets and build the road for you, they can otherwise materially assist in the work. There is no reason why this road should not be built; it must be constructed in a short time. If we fail to do it, others will soon accomplish the work. Why will citizens permit the golden opportunity to pass from their grasp? Why permit the vast surface of rich soil, with its hundred hills overspread with wealth producing, fleecy mantled flocks, while its green valleys rejoice in sleek cattle and stock, and fine blooded horses, and gladdening products of advanced agriculture, to lay in wait for more enterprising capitalists to develop and open for it an outlet to the city of Pittsburgh? Think of the agricultural wealth held within narrow confines; and then, too, of the boundless riches hidden from the greedy eye of the world, the lustrous black diamonds which are treasured up in the hills awaiting but the touch of enterprise to find development and to enrich the possessor. This wealth cannot much longer remain hidden from a great city by a mere veil of earth. No where else is there, however, so much wealth near a populous city, yet undeveloped for want of trifling enterprise. Indeed, if you do not soon awaken the hidden diamonds will get up and march off themselves, or what is equivalent, others will realize out of your apathy and neglect.

It is for the residents and property-holders along the proposed line to make a start; they must work; must interest themselves. Make the commencement and the work will speedily be prosecuted to a successful end. This can be done only by your own subscriptions; every man on the route should subscribe at least twenty-five per cent of the value of his property. He can by so doing net from one hundred to a thousand per cent in its enhanced value. Every man whose property is at present worth four thousand dollars, should subscribe one thousand dollars to the enterprise, even if he should be forced to sell or mortgage a portion. In the event of a railroad the remainder of the property will enhance in value from eight to forty thousand dollars, according to location—certainly increasing no less than one hundred per cent. So soon as the route is determined on, the very chips and whetstones on your place will turn into gold, or into greenbacks, which are better. The timbers along the line, the forests, will command the highest price, and will be purchased in the construction of the road. The stones on your hills, too, will be demanded for the work. Thus what is now of no value to you will be sought for at once and with no effort on your part. You will be able to pay your subscriptions without parting with anything of value to you until the road is laid.

REMARKS OF DR. VANVOORHIS.

Dr. John S. Vanvoorhis, of Belleverson, was next called on for an address.

On taking the floor the gentleman said: Mr. Chairman:—The necessity, practicability, and probable profit of the Monongahela Valley Railroad were so fully discussed and demonstrated in a paper I had the honor to present at a recent public meeting held at Elizabeth, that it is wholly useless to more than refer to these different questions as we progress in the business of this meeting. The all-absorbing question now seems to be that of the route of the proposed road. When the subject was first agitated, there appeared to be only two routes under consideration—the two sides of the Monongahela river, from Pittsburgh upward to the State line; but the route via Saw Mill Run to Monongahela City seems of late to have swallowed up the route on the west bank of the river; in fact, the citizens of Birmingham and upward to Monongahela City have never manifested any interest in the success of the road. This apathy on their part no doubt arises from the fact that the Southern Pennsylvania and Connellsville Railroad Company will certainly run their road across the river at McKeesport, and then down to Birmingham, there to connect with the Pan Handle Railroad. We have, therefore, only two routes for the proposed road—the Saw Mill Run route and Eastern bank of the river.

The distance from Pittsburgh to the State line is eighty-eight and a half miles, and according to Mr. Latrobe's estimate each mile will cost $25,631, and the whole distance $2,277,180. Taking McKeesport as a starting point, we must deduct fourteen miles and $432,128, and we have $1,845,052 as the cost of the road bed and track from McKeesport to the State line; to this, however, must be added $50,000 as the cost of a bridge over the Youghiogheny, and then we have the real cost of the road by that route to the State line, $1,895,052.

If the distance by way of Saw Mill Run to Monongahela City be only twenty miles, as is generally supposed, then we have gained in distance thirteen miles, and the distance from Pittsburgh to the State line via Saw Mill Run is only one mile more than the distance from McKeesport to the State line; and, therefore, as far as distance is concerned, the two routes are on nearly equal footing.

The McKeesport route has a cost of $50,000 for a bridge and fourteen miles to run on another road to reach the city, whilst the Saw Mill Run route will require a tunnel costing about $200,000 at Coal Hill, and one at Barr's Hill, costing $150,000, and saves us thirteen miles in distance, and will be an independent road all the way. The McKeesport route has coal fields nearly all the way to Monongahela City, on one side of its road, whilst the other has coal fields on both sides of the road nearly the entire route, making a distance of 40 miles of coal—five more than by the river. The McKeesport route has the river to contend against, whilst the other has no opposition, but will have all the trade of the country through which it passes—from the city of Pittsburgh to the point where the river will be reached. But this calculation is based upon the presumption that the road will be united with the Pittsburgh and Connellsville Railroad at McKeesport, thus saving fourteen miles of road. Let us suppose, however, that the road must be constructed to the city—an additional fourteen miles at a cost of $432,128, with an expensive right of way on either side of the river. Thus we have $432,128 of expense on this route more than on the Saw Mill Run route—an amount more than equal to the cost of the tunnels on the Saw Mill Run route, provided the remaining portion of the road costs no more per mile than the other route. The true difference in cost of the two routes between Pittsburgh and Monongahela City can only be obtained when the survey of the Saw Mill Run route has been completed. In our eagerness for favorite routes, we must not forget that in the location of the proposed road, the completion of it is the great question, and to this end we must have in view the ways and means by which the necessary funds can be raised to construct and equip the road. I have no doubt that in time the citizens along the different routes will subscribe a limited sum, but that sum will fall far short of the amount necessary to finish the road. The largest amount of means must come from some other source. The city of Pittsburgh is amply able to render the aid required; but from the little interest her citizens have taken thus far in our enterprise, we cannot expect much from that source. If the Saw Mill Run route is adopted, it will be natural to look to the Panhandle Railroad Company for aid—and, inasmuch as it will be to that Company's interest, ere long, to tunnel Coal Hill, it may be that by a consolidation of interests the two roads may finally be operated under the workings of one Company. By so doing, the Panhandle Railroad Company will completely embrace the coal fields of the Monongahela Valley, and with the vast coal fields already along her line, she will be able to control the trade westward. Let that Company, then, have a chance at the finishing of our road. We care not who furnishes the means, so that we have assurances that the road will be speedily constructed.

On the other hand, if the route via McKeesport is adopted we must look to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company for aid. If she will only come to our aid, our company being consolidated with the Connellsville Railroad Company, and both roads worked under one organization, and the Valley Road connected on the upper end to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, the latter company will control, by its different connections, nearly the entire coal fields of Western Pennsylvania and Western Virginia, and her influence in the coal trade will be felt all over the west. She has already manifested a friendly spirit towards our road, and there is a strong probability that she will aid us, if the eastern bank of the river is selected as the route. But if it would be done, how much better it would be to the city of Pittsburgh, and the citizens along the route, to have our new road perfectly independent, and thus reap the profits that are sure to accrue from the road when finished. But, sir, in the absence of an organization of the company, there is no power competent to negotiate with any party for anything, and hence the absolute necessity of effecting an organization at the earliest period possible. To effect this we must have subscribed ten per cent. of the capital stock, and ten per cent. of that amount paid in before letters patent can be obtained. By way of Saw Mill Run the distance is estimated at sixty-six miles to Waynesburg, and the law fixes the capital at $20,000 per mile, hence the capital stock will be $1,320,000—ten per cent of which is $134,000. This amount being subscribed, and ten per cent of it paid to the corporators, guarantee to the subscribers letters patent, and of course the control of the matter of the route. Whenever, therefore, we have this amount on our books, we will make out the certificate to the Governor—from whatever source the subscriptions may come—and it will be for the majority of the stockholders then to say where the route shall be—the distance being the same, the same amount will be required on each route. A union of effort on the part of the friends of the Saw Mill Run route and Greene county will secure at once the necessary amount, and by so doing an early organization can be effected and the question of route permanently settled.

REMARKS OF T. E. HAZZARD, ESQ.

Mr. Hazzard was called on to state what enterprising citizens of Monongahela City proposed to do in the way of encouraging the contemplated enterprise. In reply he stated that he was not prepared to speak for his fellow citizens, as they had not taken any concerted action on the subject. He thought railroads were a good thing to have about the house. The river is too slow a coach for these times; the people want better facilities for transportation. The road should not be laid on the other side of the Monongahela, as freights seldom jump rivers. The expense attending the handling of freight to get it from one bank to the other was large and the labor great. Then if the road be built on the other side, competition would spring up between it and the Connellsville Railroad, and as it would have but a strip of land three miles in width to draw its freight and passengers from, it would prove profitless. The junction at McKeesport, from which point the rails of the Connellsville Company it is proposed to use, would not prove good policy, for the moment your locomotive gets on that road you will discover that that corporation will find a way to eat up all your profits. That was the case with the Connellsville road itself. So long as it used the track of the Pennsylvania Central road it was unprofitable. In other instances the same fact was apparent, and in no case, so far as the speaker had observed, do collateral roads pay. A prosperous road must have a head and a tail. Monongahela City is deeply concerned in the construction of the road over the route proposed, and the speaker felt that her citizens should help on the enterprise. He knew they would do their full share. Some of the merchants, who were not in attendance at the meeting, had urged objections to the road, as it would ruin their business in bringing prices down. They were afraid of competition. Well, if the road shall accomplish that much, it should be finished at once, for men with so little enterprise were worthy of that fate. It will benefit trade, open an outlet for our products, concentrate travel, enrich property, and in all respects contribute to the general welfare. The speaker reviewed at length the benefits to be accrued from the road, and concluded by expressing the belief that there was capital enough among those immediately interested in the enterprise to hold, own and operate the road independent of all other companies.

Mr. Isaac King next addressed the meeting, speaking briefly and pertinently of the immense benefits ensuing to real estate from railroads passing through or near its neighborhood.

Hon. J. A. Hamper urged that some practical result should be obtained so that the meeting would not prove fruitless. He would ask about how much of the amount assessed on Monongahela City ($8,000) could condently be expected.

In reply, Hon. George V. Lawrence stated that he had taken an interest in the road, and had freely canvassed the subject with the citizens of Monongahela City, but had not met with the most favorable response. However, he thought the business men and merchants would do their full duty. He thought the overland much preferable to the river route, and would himself subscribe a large share of the amount assessed the borough. He concluded by moving that a Committee of five be appointed to solicit subscriptions from the citizens of Monongahela City, to aid in securing the amount necessary to secure the Letters Patent.

The resolution was carried and the following gentlemen were appointed as the canvassing committee: Messrs. George V. Lawrence, James Van Voorhis, Isaac Jones, John Clemens and Greer McIlvaine.

After the transaction of some other business the Convention adjourned to meet at the Town Hall, Birmingham, on Tuesday, the 10th proximo. After adjournment, the Committee on Survey and Subscriptions, Dr. Oldshue, Chairman, met at Shepler's Hotel, and after receiving the subscriptions offered, hearing the several reports, and transacting other miscellaneous business, directed their Engineer, Dr. Stilley, to make a survey of the Birmingham, Brownstown and Beck's Run route to Saw Mill Run, with a view of avoiding the heavy expense of a tunnel opposite the Monongahela Bridge.

This will be done at once, and a full report of the same will be made at their next meeting. The parties whose lands are located along the line of the Saw Mill Run route have unanimously granted the right of way to the company, and the prospects for the road are quite brilliant. A meeting has been arranged for, to be held at Rice's Landing on the 17th proximo, when citizens from other neighborhoods will be called to take action.

The Tack Arrest.

The business community were somewhat astonished yesterday, at the announcement in the Leader of the arrest of Mr. Theodore E. Tack of this city, and his brother, Mr. A. H. Tack, of Philadelphia, on charges of conspiracy to defraud and false pretences, preferred against them by Mr. James O'Connor, of this city. The particulars of the transaction out of which the suit arose had its origin we have not yet learned. No business firm in the city enjoys a higher reputation for strict honesty and integrity than the Messrs. Tack, and in justice to these gentlemen public opinion should be suspended until the full particulars of the case are developed. In justice to Mr. Theodore Tack, we will state that his contemplated visit to Europe was not to evade the present difficulty. He is to visit Antwerp to carry out a business scheme, in which nearly all of our petroleum dealers are deeply interested. The impression conveyed in the dispatch is different, and we have no hesitation in contradicting it. It will doubtless transpire that the charges made should have found their way before a civil tribunal rather than the criminal court.

Riot at the Point.

A disgraceful riot occurred in the vicinity of the Point Saturday night, in which a number of notorious characters were engaged, most of whom have been arrested. The facts of the case, so far as we have been able to learn them, are as follows: Late Saturday night James Harkins went into Derring's saloon at the corner of Penn and Duquesne streets, and asked for liquor, which was refused him by the bar keeper, who thought he had a sufficient quantity for one man to carry. This incensed Harkins and he became boisterous, so very boisterous that his loud talk brought in officer Martin Joice, who attempted to arrest him, when "Sig" and Frank Miller, Andy Thair and "Big Jim," friends of Harkins, assaulted the officer, beating him about the head and face shamefully. A number of other officers were summoned, and the parties named were all arrested and taken before His Honor Mayor McCartny, who committed them to jail in default of $1,000 bail each for a hearing on Monday.

Coroner's Inquests.

The following statistics showing the number of inquests held by Coroner Clawson, and the cause of death, from January 1st to July 1st, 1867, as taken from the records on file in the office of Mr. Brown, clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions, will be of interest to many of our readers:

Burglaries.

From the late burglarious demonstrations in our sister city and the seeming inactivity of the "profession" on this side of the river, we were almost led to believe that for the present, at least, we were rid of the scamps; but it appears to have been a vain delusion. We are convinced of their presence in the city, not by the capture of any of them, (and we fear it will be many days before we receive such welcome evidence) but they have left unmistakeable signs of having been in the city so late as Friday night. Their operations, although of a very daring character, seem to indicate a want of knowledge in the profession and consequently neither of the "jobs," for there were several of them, were very profitable.

The Valley Forge plow warehouse of Messrs. John Hall & Co., corner of Liberty and Pitt streets, was entered, the burglars gaining entrance through a window on Pitt street, near the rear of the building. One of the lower panes in the window was cracked, and they removed the pieces, leaving them carefully piled on the pavement, and crawling through the opening in the sash. On their way to the front they took a gimlet and chisel to work with, and with them they pried open every door and drawer of the clerk's desk in the front office, mashing the wood work pretty badly, and throwing the letters, papers and books into hopeless confusion, but, so far as is known, not taking anything, probably because there was nothing of value to take. The safe was in the back office, but was not disturbed. The sleeping rooms up stairs were also left undisturbed. The burglars went out probably as they came in, and left a number of books and three umbrellas lying on the ground, close against the walls of the building, where they were found at five o'clock Saturday morning.

Not being satisfied with their operations at this point, they next visited the paint shop of Messrs. Singer & Marshall, on the opposite corner, where they wrought complete havoc among the paint, overturning all the kegs and cans and spilling the contents in a hopeless state of mixedness on the floor. From the drawer they stole six books of gold leaf, and five dollars in currency. They made their entrance and exit through a window on Pitt street, over a small bench that stood under the window. On this bench some bills paint had been spilled, and one of the fellows probably got some paint on his clothing, as there are marks of it on the window sill, where he climbed out. Some vermillion was also stolen from this shop.

Being a little more successful in the latter instance, which doubtless emboldened them, the next attempt was on the store of Messrs. Hays & Stewart, on the opposite side of Liberty street. After partly raising one of the windows, they attempted to pull a chair through the opening. They did not succeed, however, and left, leaving a chisel sticking in the window.

Notwithstanding these operations were on frequented streets, and must necessarily have occupied a considerable length of time, and caused quite an unusual noise in the vicinity, no person heard or knew anything of them until Saturday morning. Is there no remedy for such a state of affairs Must the citizens of Pittsburgh quietly submit to having their places of business and even dwellings, robbed and pillaged? If so, it is time they knew it, so that all may be prepared for it. We think there is a remedy, and it should be applied, and that immediately. We refer to an increase and thorough re-organization of the police force. The present force, so far as we know, may be good, reliable men, but the number is inadequate to the task of guarding the lives and property of sixty thousand inhabitants in a city like Pittsburgh.

The Sculling Match.

The principal, in fact the only, excitement in the city on Saturday was the Sculling Match between Harry Coltart, of Manchester, and William Jackson, Sr., of this city. This race has been on the tapis for some weeks past, during which time the contestants have been under heavy training, and on making their appearance showed signs of having been in good hands. Both men were in excellent condition, the day pleasant and the course smooth, and, as is customary on such occasions, a large concourse of people—men, women and children—had congregated on the Smithfield street bridge, the numerous steamboats along the wharf, and in fact on every available position on either side of the river from the bridge to the Point. Sporting men were numerous, and the betting run high, Jackson at first being the favorite at two to one. Takers were plenty at this odds and it soon run down to even, Jackson continuing to be the favorite until after the start.

At a quarter past five o'clock Coltart made his appearance in a neat little skull, and was clad in pink shirt and scarlet tights, and with a few vigorous pulls shot up the river under the bridge, giving evidence of superior training and powerful muscle. He was hailed with a few cheers, the weakness of which clearly indicated he was not the favorite in that locality. A few moments later Jackson dropped down under the bridge in a beautiful little craft called the "Jimmy Hamill," attired in pink shirt and white tights. He was received with a "terrific" round of applause, which continued for several minutes. After the usual preliminaries the men took their positions, Jackson next the Pittsburgh shore, and the word "go" was given. Coltart did not appear to have been quite ready and his first stroke was a failure, and by a vigorous effort Jackson gained the start by fully half a length. At the second pull, however, Coltart was at his work and he steadily gained on Jackson, finally passing him before they had reached the Point. From that time to the close of the race the Manchester man had it all his own way, and came in an easy winner in thirty-eight minutes and ten seconds.

The race was the most interesting of any that has ever taken place at this city, and we believe the most hotly contested, as the "time" clearly indicates that no time was thrown away. Several thousand dollars changed hands on the result, and as a natural consequence there were several hundred "drunks" in the evening. The winners drank on account of their good luck, while the losers drank to drown their disappointment.

Violation of Sepulture.

John Mahaffey made information Saturday before Justice Luke B. Davidson, of East Liberty, against John and Patrick McGlaughlin, charging them with violation of sepulture. It appears that John McGlaughlin is a Catholic, and that he married a Protestant wife, with whom he has been residing near Wilkinsburg. A short time since one of their children died, and John came to the city to make arrangements for having the child interred in a Catholic burying ground. While John was absent his wife took it into her head to have the child buried in a Protestant grave yard, immediately set herself to work, had the corpse conveyed to the graveyard attached to Beulah church, and there buried. She then returned home, and had been there but a short time when John made his appearance with two carriages and other arrangements for a funeral; but what was his surprise to learn that the funeral was over, and the child buried in a Protestant graveyard. There was a "time," then, and a big one, too; but it was not to end there. John swore as he left the house he would have the body removed. He accordingly returned to the city with his carriages and procured a coffin and a vehicle, and in company with his brother Patrick started for the graveyard where the child was interred, to reach which it was necessary to pass his dwelling. His wife observed him passing, and John intimated his intention to her by pointing to the coffin. This created another "scene," and the neighbors were attracted to the place by the screams of the woman. John and Patrick proceeded on their way and, after finding the sexton, who informed them as correctly as he could where the child was buried, (for which John generously gave him five dollars,) they went to the grave as they supposed, and commenced work. They had mistaken the place and had just reached the box containing the coffin in another grave when the officers came up and arrested them, which put a stop to the work. They were taken before the Justice, and after a hearing committed in default of $500 each for their appearance at court.

Charles C. Noble.

This young gentleman, whose funeral obsequies were attended yesterday by a large number of heart stricken friends, had so far recovered from a series of attacks of nervous or brain fever that he had resumed his oversight of the business of his house, and himself told us that he felt well again. On the very day that he was thus hopeful his terrible disease returned with more violent symptoms than before. His constitution had been so much impaired that it could not withstand this last attack, and he fell a victim to it. We know of no young man among us who was more endeared to those who knew him than Mr. Noble. He had, by his gentle, suave and unassuming manners, won, not the respect only, but the affection of his acquaintances. As a clerk and merchant he was expert, thorough and systematic, without ostentation. He was earnest, energetic, circumspect and honest. His gentle and pure nature recoiled from profane, obscene or vicious companionship. He has passed from this earthly life of trouble and gloom, we doubt not, to a heavenly life of glory and bliss. Let us not grieve for him, but only for the relations and friends, especially for his stricken wife and children, for their loss of the one most beloved. Let us all remember "what shadows we are, what shadows we pursue."

Excitement.

An affray occurred at the "Bull's Head," Second street, yesterday evening, which for a short time created quite an excitement in that locality. Jimmy Lloyd, it appears, had stopped at the Bull's Head for dinner, and when told what the bill was, excepted to it, and appealed to one of the boarders who was standing near, who it appears agreed with the landlord, whereupon Jimmy struck him and knocked him down, ran out of the house, up Second to Grant, followed by two men who overhauled him on Grant street, between Third and Fourth, and took him back to the starting point. During all this time the man who had been struck lay insensible, and remained so for several minutes longer. He finally recovered, when Jimmy was released and allowed to depart in peace, and the crowd which had assembled in and around the house informed by the landlady that they were not wanted there.

Disorderly.—James Cashdollar, having taken a considerable quantity of "benzine," Saturday, became unruly and behaved himself in a disorderly manner in East Birmingham, a proceeding which did not accord with Philip Shroth's ideas of propriety, and to punish Cashdollar for his offence Shroth went before Justice Heisel and made complaint against him. Cashdollar was arrested, and not having a dollar in cash about his clothes, he was discharged, and the prosecutor "footed the bill."

Senator Bigham and the Banks.

EDITORS GAZETTE: At the last session of the Legislature, an act was passed to "increase the revenue of the Commonwealth, by taxation of the shares, or stock, of the National Banks." Now, I have nothing to say for or against the justice of the tax itself. That is one thing; the little arrangements for fat offices under it is another, and to the latter I do object, and I think the community will agree with me. Senator Bigham understands thoroughly parliamentary tactics, and is sufficiently energetic to endeavor to carry or to kill any measure which he likes or dislikes. Yet from some cause or other, the distinguished Senator permitted this particular bill, containing in its second paragraph, authority to the Auditor General and State Treasurer to appoint an adequate number of suitable persons, as assessors, at the most extravagant compensation of seven per cent to each upon every dollar of tax due, upon their assessments, to become a law, without a word of protest, but to the contrary thereof, uses every effort to secure its passage!

The Assessors for this (the 11th) District are George H. Holtzman and J. L. Bigham, who is the Senator's son!

What have tax payers to pay to the Senator's son and Geo. H. Holtzman, because of the forgetfulness of the Senator to oppose this clause in the act. By their report the total valuation is $10,692,443.

Three mill tax amounts to $32,077 35.
6⅝ cent. thereon for J. L. Bigham is $2,119 41
6⅝ cents. for Mr. Holtzman is 2,119 41

Total compensation is........... $4,238 82

Truly, a royal compensation, especially when we consider that the act was passed April 12, 1867, and the labors of the Assessors are already completed, leaving at least eight months of the year to themselves for such other labors as they may see proper to engage in.

But consider for one moment that this magnificent salary, or commission, is earned by merely copying the lists of stockholders, of record in the bank offices; by multiplying the total of shares by the market value, and then a simple addition, and the filing of the papers! It would shame an ordinary clerk not to accomplish the results in one week's time.

I assert that if there were no other objection to Senator Bigham's nomination for re-election—the fact that there is this result beneficial to a member of his family, consequent upon his action and position as a Senator—the further fact, that the creation of these officers is entirely unnecessary—that the Ward Assessors were as fully competent as the gentlemen who draw this royal compensation—should be conclusive. The people should condemn the person whose legislation produces such fruits. X.

Retaliation.—John Snyder, it appears went into an ice cream saloon kept by Mrs. Moritzon, wife of Charles Moritzon, of East Birmingham, and while there used some insulting language to the proprietress, when she struck him in the mouth. This was more than John could tolerate, and he retaliated by dealing Mrs. M. a right hander on the nose, which caused the "claret" to run freely, and knocked her "out of time." The husband of the vanquished lady did not like this proceeding, and he made information before Justice Heisel, against Snyder, for assault and battery. Snyder was arrested and held for a hearing to-day.

A Game of Poker.—R. P. Gordon made information before Alderman Donaldson, on Saturday, against Dr. W. P. Kern for surety of the peace. He alleges that the Doctor threatened to strike him with a poker. The Doctor, it appears, held the "winning hand" that "deal," but Gordon got the cards "up" the next time, and they were indulging in a little "bluff." The Alderman having taken a "hand" in the game, will most probably "ruin" them both, and it is not likely either of them will "come back at him." The matter will be decided to-day.

We Clip the following from the London Orchestra of July 27th: The Gazette des Etrangers states that Madame la Baronne James de Rothschild, wishing to possess the best grand piano in the Exhibition, gave an order to make a careful examination to that effect. The result was that the grand pianos of Steinway & Sons, of New York, were found superior to all others; whereupon she immediately bought one for her Chateau de Ferrieres.

Abusing Animals.—Officer Ferdinand Kaufield, of Birmingham, made information before Justice Heisel, Saturday, against Fred Otto for surety of the peace. He alleges that Otto was abusing a team of mules which he was driving, and that he, Kanfield, interfered on behalf of the mules when Otto threatened to beat him. He also made information against him for cruelty to animals. The matter was adjusted by the defendant paying the costs.

U. S. Commissioner Appointed.—In the United States Court, on Saturday, Judge McCandless announced that he had appointed A. T. Askong, of Somerset, Somerset county, as United States Commissioner. Mr. A. is a citizen of high standing, a member of the bar, and the appointment was conferred on him on the recommendation of Hon. A. H. Coffroth and others.

Threatened his Wife.—Mary Maddox made information before Alderman Taylor, on Saturday, against her husband, William Maddox, for surety of the peace, in which she alleges that he threatened to beat her brains out. A warrant was issued for William, and whenever the officers want him they will get him, as he is now in jail awaiting trial in another case.

Lumber Larceny.—D. Robinson made information before Alderman Humbert, on Saturday, against David Campbell, Sr., and David Campbell, Jr., father and son, charging them with larceny. He alleges that the accused took two plank, valued at $6.50, from one of the Temperanceville ferry boats. They were arrested and held for a hearing.

WHAT HINDERS IT?

After war, then peace. Such is the aspiration of every genuine American citizen, looking to the welfare of the whole human race as of this country. What hinders, not the cessation of actual conflict, for that happened more than two years ago, but the restoration of actual peace, concord and amity between the different sections of the republic.

No truer standard for determining the extent and intensity of the alienation that existed can be hit upon than the duration and severity of the war. So protracted and violent a struggle was rendered possible only by the existence of the deepest feeling on both sides. But it is needful to discriminate that while the people of the South hated those of the North, the people of the North, with individual exceptions, were not embittered towards those of the South. The feelings of the two sections ran in parallel lines, but differed widely as to nature and object. The South was radically estranged from the North, and earnestly desired separation; while the North, so far from being alienated, longed for nothing so much as continued fellowship and inter-communion.

This attitude of Northern sentiment, whatever doubt may have existed previously concerning it, was demonstrated as soon as the rebel armies surrendered. No serious thought was entertained of sanguinary reprisals. Not a rebel was brought to punishment; nor was one even put under arrest for treason. All were allowed to betake themselves to whatever lawful employments they pleased, without fear of molestation from any quarter. Laws passed during the progress of the war, auxiliary to military operations, as that confiscating the properties of leading rebels, were at once construed in the most liberal manner. Nay, the people have acquiesced in the restoration of millions upon millions of confiscated property, or the avails thereof, even when the President and Secretary of the Treasury have boldly violated the obvious spirit and letter of the laws, in making restitutions. Never, since the dawn of authentic history, was a great revolt sought to be closed out by the victors on a scale of such stupendous magnanimity.

Nor have the political concessions been less than those relating to personal safety and property reclamations. No desire has been evinced to hold the revolted States, for any considerable period, in a condition of political inferiority or abeyance. On the contrary, a marvellous eagerness has been exhibited to restore to those States all their forfeited rights and immunities, without exacting security for future repose or for the observance of the national faith pledged to the blacks in the Act of Emancipation. If the chivalrous tendency of the Northern people in this matter had not been counteracted, it is evident that the work of Reconstruction would have been fully completed months ago. What has retarded this movement?

It has been hindered by the conduct of the rebels themselves. In the main, the military leaders of the rebellion have behaved well. Many of them went into the revolt reluctantly, constrained by a public sentiment in their respective States, manufactured by politicians, and in which they did not share. For the cause they espoused, they did the best they could, as long as the prosecution of the war was possible. In defeat, they knew full well what rights victory conferred upon the national authorities. They comprehended what, under like circumstances, they would have felt empowered to do had they judged severity necessary or desirable. In surrendering unconditionally, as they did, they realized that every thing short of death that was awarded them was the result of clemency, not of desert. Hence, instead of stirring up strife, they have almost unanimously counseled a cordial acceptance of the terms proposed by Congress, and superadded an example corresponding with their inculcations.

Not a few of the politicians have seen proper to take the opposite course. Mainly third to tenth rate lawyers, they have resorted to legal niceties with a view to upsetting facts established by the force of common and the concurrent will of the nation. Quickly forgetting that they took their case out of the category of the laws, by an appeal to arms, had it adjudicated in the arena they selected, and had a momentous verdict rendered against them, they insist upon having a re-hearing in Court, on such points, and such only, as they fancy would there be determined in their favor. Of course, they would not care to be called upon to answer to the laws individually upon indictments for treason. Such arraignments might be attended with unpleasant consequences, or at least beget uncomfortable sensation about their necks. All they want is to have so much of the laws vindicated as guard the rights of persons and of States; not so much of them as punish individuals for disregarding their obligations to the laws. They wish to indulge in the luxury of crime without incurring penalties, and when baffled and beaten to fall back with an air of outraged innocence upon legal provisions designed for the security of loyal and well-disposed citizens. Most of these politicians took good care, while the war raged, not to expose their bodies to serious risks, and they renew their clamor only because they think they can do so with impunity. What they seek is not repose for the country, but to retain in defeat as many of the advantages of victory as they can.

Into their hands the President has unwisely played. That officer committed two faults. He magnified his own authority out of all proportion. Indeed, he acted as if the government was an imperial despotism, and he, as its head, had a right to do as he would. He deposed the Governors of nine States, and appointed satraps in their stead. He issued rescripts authorizing the satraps to levy and collect taxes, and to apply the proceeds. He convoked Constitutional Conventions, and dictated what alterations should be made in the local organic laws. He claimed to have absolute and exclusive authority to determine and prescribe all the conditions of Reconstruction, leaving Congress to judge only of the personal character and qualifications of the members of the two Houses chosen from the revolted States. He arrogated to himself alone the right to do all Congress has since done in that regard. No acknowledged Emperor and Military Conqueror was ever more exacting, self-sufficient or imperial. In thus assuming powers that did not belong to his office, and which were totally fatal to all just conceptions of representative government, he laid the basis of a conflict with the legislative bodies. Congress could do nothing less than assert its own prerogatives in the premises. It was inspired to resistance alike by a feeling that its dignity was invaded, and a sense that the public liberties could be secured only by compelling the President to recede from his unwarrantable assumptions.

At this point the President suddenly veered completely about. He made the grand discovery that no power existed in any or all departments of the government to do what he had been doing of his own motion. He rushed to the extreme of maintaining that as soon as the war was over all the rights the revolted States had previously enjoyed under the Constitution, reverted to them as a matter of absolute necessity, and in as full perfection as though they had maintained an unshaken fealty to the Union. Upon this showing Congress should certainly have proceeded against the President by impeachment, and have deposed him for flagrant usurpations. Nothing can be plainer than that if the President should presume to do by loyal States what he did by disloyal ones, he would merit impeachment, and it would speedily overtake him.

From the moment the President abandoned his original blunder, he has maintained such a position as has afforded the strongest possible encouragement to the rebels. His doctrine has been their doctrine. All his measures have contributed to ends they have at heart. He has encouraged them to resist the easy terms of Reconstruction propounded by Congress, and to demand that their States shall of right be restored unconditionally. He has made the Executive mansion the rallying point for all the disaffected men throughout the insurgent States. He has listened to their complaints against Congress and the commanders of the Military Departments. He has refused to execute laws whose import he well understood, but which he attempted to emasculate by sophistical interpretation. He is now threatening with removal a number of Generals because they refuse to substitute his will for the laws of the land. He makes the work of Reconstruction difficult; may, perhaps, cause the adjournment of it, or the imposition of severer conditions; and engenders a strife most unfriendly to speedy and lasting concord.

Beecher on Wealth.

It is a very comfortable thing to be rich. Most men have an exalted idea of their capacity to endure affluence. Yet a general impression has gone abroad that morally the possession of wealth should be deprecated rather than desired. In an essay, which appears in the current number of the Herald of Health, Rev. H. W. Beecher expresses himself in this relation in a very forcible and philosophic manner:

All the institutions of society which enrich and ennoble human life require wealth for their existence. The time has gone by when men can rail at wealth as incompatible with religion and virtue. Schools and colleges were impossible but for accumulated treasure. Books and newspapers, that have become as indispensable as food—these were impossible except in communities where there is treasure accumulated. Churches could not be built, and their services could not be maintained, except on accumulated capital. Hospitals, relief asylums, elemosynary enterprises, depend upon conditions of wealth. Art could not long flourish where there was not wealth. Literature and learning depend upon wealth—not directly and visibly in every case; but communities that have to labor from day to day for the necessities of life have not the time nor the means to pursue higher aims and ends. It is only where wealth has been accumulated that men rise from sordid labor for the bread that perishes, and begin to give life to higher ambitions and nobler elements such as art, literature and learning.

* * * * *

Nay, I advocate riches. The time is coming when men will be rich in large numbers; and Christians may as well try it on now as later. I do not believe that the world is going to be scrawny, bare-boned and undecorated forever. The God of grace is the God of beauty; the God of love is the God that made the heaven with the sun therein that shines by day, and the stars that shine by night; and I believe that that God who is full of taste and full of variety and full of beauty, has ordained that men shall be rich in the future state of the world.

Freedmen's Monument to Lincoln.

Considerable attention has been attracted this week, says a correspondent of the Chicago Journal, to the drawing, by Miss Hosmer, of the proposed Freedmen's Monument to the memory of the late President Lincoln, which is exhibited at Messrs. Colnaghi's gallery. Its merits have been extensively discussed in society, and the press generally has criticised it in terms of commendation. Miss Hosmer, herself, is always a favored visitor in England, where her merits as an artist are fully appreciated, and where, indeed, they were accepted even before she had acquired much popularity at home. Much of this was due, I apprehend, to the fact that she was the favorite pupil of Gibson, whose testimony in regard to her merits was received without hesitation, and when her works were once exhibited here she no longer needed the certificate even of her master.

I do not know whether the design has been publicly exhibited with you, but venture to give a brief description of it. The height of the structure is to be sixty feet, the material granite and the statue bronze.

The design is an open temple, in which is the figure of the President, holding in one hand the Emancipation Proclamation, and in the other a broken chain. Round the temple are four heroic figures typifying liberty, and encircling the architrave the closing words of the Proclamation, viz: "And upon this, sincerely believed to be an act of justice, I invoke the considerate judgment of mankind and the gracious favor of Almighty God." On a circular bas-relief is a procession of thirty-six female figures, hand-in-hand, representing the States. On four smaller bas reliefs are as many scenes in the life of the President, the inscriptions on which are respectively: "Abraham Lincoln, Martyr President of the United States: Preserver of the American Union: Emancipator of Four Millions of Men." The four statues at the corner represent the negro as follows: 1st, as a slave exposed for sale; 2d, as a laborer on a plantation; 3d, as a guide and assistant of loyal troops; and, 4th, as a soldier of the Union. Of course a flat drawing does not convey a strictly correct idea of what the construction will be, but competent judges declare that when complete, it must take high rank as a work of art.

Arrest of a Scoundrel—Chicago Detectives Work Up the Case.

For some time past obstructions have been placed upon the track at Hanover Junction, Rock county, Wis., a portion of the Beloit and Madison Railway. Happily, the trains have met with no serious accident in consequence of the diabolical attempts. The railroad authorities determined to ferret out the perpetrators of the criminal outrage. They employed Richard B. Bellinger, Chief of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad Company's police, for that purpose. Bellinger sent a man to the Junction with instructions to hire himself out as a laborer to a farmer named Patrick Sheridan, who was suspected of having made the repeated attempts to overthrow the trains. The man acted as ordered, and went to work on Sheridan's farm. He became very familiar with his employer, and by the exercise of his faculties for worming into other people's confidence, succeeded in a few days in being assured by Sheridan that the latter had determined to "smash up the road," and that he was the man who had thrown cedar posts and other obstructions upon the track. Bellinger was advised of this, and proceeded from Chicago to the farm and arrested Sheridan. The prisoner was yesterday examined at Beloit and held for trial at the Circuit Court at Janesville, Wis., in bail of $1,500.

The reason of Sheridan's demoniacal conduct is because a pony, belonging to him, which had strayed upon the track, was some time ago killed by being run over, and because the company did not settle his claim for damages at the very moment he requested. Such a wretch should be shut up in jail for life.—Chicago Journal.

A PLEASANT SOCIAL CUSTOM IN NORWAY.—The men of Hallingdal are said to have a strange and barbarous custom when in drink. Being well primed with finkel, they draw their short knives, and pointing them to each other, they inquire in an amicable way, "How far will you go?" A certain portion of each knife is then measured off on each side, and the remainder of the blades are carefully bound around with cloth, so that the knives cannot penetrate beyond a certain distance. All present then set to work and stab and slash each other in all directions. Sometimes these encounters end fatally, but a little blood-letting does none of the parties any harm. It may be asked if these strange combats arise from a natural taste for shedding blood. It is said not to be so, but that the custom has been handed down from father to son for many generations, and that any Hallingdal man who refused to fight when challenged, would be branded as a coward.

—The effect of the laws against cutting and in favor of planting trees in France has been such that, of late years, instead of a steady decrease in the extent of woodland in the empire, there has been a constant gain. In 1859 the wooded surface of France was 8,783,743 hectares, or less than 22,500,000 acres, the whole number of acres of land in France being at least 125,000,000. In 1865 the number of hectares in wood had increased to over 9,000,000, or nearly a million acres more than fifteen years before.

LADIES,

If you are afflicted with lassitude; if, on rising in the morning, you feel unrefreshed, with a bad taste in the mouth; a disgust for food; a constant desire to rest, it is time something should be done to stop the growing evil. We know of no preparation more highly adapted to all afflictions of this description than HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

For mother's nursing this great tonic should always be taken especially where the mother's nourishment is inadequate to the demands of the child, consequently her strength must yield, and here it is where a good tonic, such as HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, is needed to impart temporary to the whole system. Ladies should by all means try this remedy, and before so doing ask your physician, who, if he is acquainted with its virtues, will recommend its use in all cases. As a it has no equal, while its pleasing flavor and healthful effects have made it a general favorite. It is free from all properties calculated to impair the system, and its operations are at once mild, soothing and efficient. All who have used the BITTERS attest its virtues and commend it to use.

STRENGTH AND VIGOR

CURE OF FISTULA.

DR. KEYSER: I write to thank you for your kindness and scientific management of my disease, for which I called to consult you some time in January last. You will remember that I had a complication of diseases which finally ended in a terrible fistula, which had been advised to "let alone" on account of a harassing cough, which it was feared might fasten on my lungs. I knew that the popular mode of treating diseases like mine was by a cutting operation, which, if successful at all, would naturally throw the disease upon the lungs or some other vital organ, on account of the suddenness of the cure and the immediate check to a discharge which I was constrained to believe was a salutary provision of Nature to get rid of some morbid condition in the system. I feel perfectly satisfied that your method of treatment, purifying to the system, and local applications to the fistulous part, must cure, if anything could, without cutting, which I find it did, and I am happy to report myself well in every particular, with sounder and better health than I have had for years. I would also add that the applications you made were almost painless, and have left me a new man, with all the energies and vigor of restored health.

Yours, gratefully, C—.

Dr. Keyser's consultation rooms are No. 120 Penn street, from 9 A. M. until 4 p. m.

PROSPECTUS
"ECLIPSE"
PETROLEUM REFINING CO.,
OF PITTSBURGH, PA.

CAPITAL, - - - $500,000.
5,000 SHARES, $100 EACH.

This Company is to be organized to manufacture Petroleum Illuminating Oil, under patents granted to Dr. HERBERT W. C. TWEDDLE. The Patents, Works, Grounds, &c., become the exclusive property of the Company.

The property on which the "Eclipse" Oil Refining Works are constructed adjoins the Sharpsburg Bridge, and consists of five or six acres. It presents a frontage on the Allegheny river of about five hundred feet. There is always deep water at this point even at the lowest stage of the river, and there is a safe harbor from ice during the winter. The Allegheny Valley Railway passes directly in front of the works on the bank of the river. The Citizens' Passenger Railway has its terminus at the works. The Sharpsburg Bridge crosses the Allegheny river opposite the works. At Sharpsburg the Western Pennsylvania Railway Company has erected a station, spacious freight houses, etc.

The Works, when completed, are designed to refine one thousand barrels of oil per diem.

The following are a few of the advantages resulting from Dr. Tweddle's new process:

The business is entirely divested of all its present dangerous and hazardous character. No fire is used—save beneath the boilers—steam being the only agent employed.

The use of acids and alkalies are entirely dispensed with, and the oil produced is made better and purer without them. Besides, the fire test is made higher by this process and the oil a safer illuminator, and almost odorless.

The whole apparatus is under the control of one operator, whether one hundred or one thousand barrels of oil per day are manufactured. The duty of this operator consists in the opening and closing of a few valves. There is no tar or coke to be cleaned out, and the apparatus can be started and stopped in a few seconds, thereby entirely doing away with the necessity of working on the Sabbath day.

There is no bad odor generated in the manufacture of oil by this process, and no destruction to the apparatus. The waste gasses are utilized as fuel, and the residuum into lubricating oil equal in all respects to that from West Virginia and Ohio.

By this process oil can be produced at a cost of one dollar per barrel less than by any other in use, and at the same time a greater per centage is obtained. Less amount of capital is required to carry on the business, for the reason that the crude material is so rapidly and entirely transformed into the marketable product. There are many and various facts which the operation of manufacturing oil by this process will demonstrate to the observer, and which are not enumerated here.

The "Eclipse" is the thirteenth Refinery constructed by Dr. Tweddle in this vicinity. They number amongst them our largest and most successful; the Pittsburgh, Excelsior, Brilliant, Eagle, Standard, &c. He deems this one worthy of the name it bears, and will bring the best efforts of his experience to make it complete and satisfactory to the stockholders.

Only One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars worth of the Capital Stock of the Eclipse Petroleum Refining Company will be disposed of.

The Books are now open at the office of

S. M. KIER & CO.,
No. 359 Liberty Street,
NEAR THE UNION RAILWAY DEPOT.

Specimens of the products can be examined, and compared with those by the old processes, at S. M. Kier & Co.'s Office.

Cards of admission to the Works can be obtained of Dr. TWEDDLE, when subscribers can have the rationale of the process explained.

UNITED STATES COURT.

Whisky Fraud Case—Reasons Assigned for the Motion for a New Trial in the Case of Alfred Myers, Convicted Counterfeiting.

The United States Court met on Saturday, at ten o'clock, and resumed the trial of the Lycoming county whisky fraud case, in which Jesse B. Rank, Phinneas Barber and Ambrose Henderson are the respondents. The case had progressed to the evidence for the defence, when the Court adjourned till to-day at ten o'clock.

THE MYERS COUNTERFEITING CASE.

The reasons assigned and filed for a new trial in the case of Alfred Myers, of Venango county, convicted on the 15th inst. of selling counterfeit money, are as follows:

I. Mr. Perrine, of counsel for the United States, in his address to the jury made statements on his own knowledge, which statements, or declarations, were not at all in evidence, or proved in the trial of the case, to wit: statements materially affecting the character and credibility of two witnesses for the defense, Messrs. Burr and Harman; and the said statements were calculated and intended to prejudice the cause of the defendant and to have undue weight with the jury. [Pro of report and notes of said counsel's address to the jury.]

II. It is respectfully urged that it was error to permit the District Attorney, against objection of defendant's counsel, to cross-examine defendant's witness, J. W. Boles, as to his being under arrest for passing counterfeit money—first, because defendant's counsel were not permitted to ask the Government witness, Burke, similar questions, or as to his arrest and confinement in the jails at Warren and Franklin; and, secondly, because said cross-examination of Boles was illegal, and calculated materially to damage the defendant's cause.

III. It is also respectfully urged that the District Attorney should not have been allowed to examine, as he did, the witness De Haven touching and concerning the alleged attempts of Mr. Pierce to tamper with said witness. For if such attempts had even been made, they formed no part of the issue; and such testimony was illegal, and was materially calculated to prejudice and to injure the defendant.

IV. The prosecution should not have been permitted to examine the witness, Mr. Perrine, as was done, touching the alleged conversations with Mr. Pierce about the getting out of the way of Charles Johnston and De Haven. Such evidence was illegal, and was greatly calculated to prejudice the defendant's cause.

V. But it was error, after Perrine's evidence was received, not to allow Mr. Carter to be called to prove that Perrine had actually stated to him, on the cars, coming to Pittsburgh to this trial, that he, Perrine, "would fix Pierce, so that he would never practice in Court," or words to that effect.

VI. The defense was very materially prejudiced by allowing any evidence to be given touching the alleged tampering with De Haven and Perrine, for that was not the issue; and the facts, if true, would have formed the basis of an indictment or indictments for totally dissimilar offenses.

VII. It is respectfully alleged as error, that the Court rejected the offer to prove by Mr. Wiley, that he, Wiley, had a conversation with Simon Benson, in which the latter admitted that he was taking active measures in behalf of Charles Johnston, because Johnston had become a witness against Alfred Myers—and that Benson had written a letter in Johnson's behalf, and that Benson had shown Wiley the answer from some agent of the Government.

Accompanying the reasons was filed the following affidavit:

T. O. Carter, being sworn, saith—I reside at Corry, Penna. Had a conversation with W. V. Perrine, on his way to Pittsburgh to attend the trial of Alfred Myers, and Perrine stated to this deponent that he would fix Pierce so that he would never practice in the United States Court again; that he would put up a job on Pierce that would fix him. And De Haven told this deponent, after he had testified against Pierce, on Monday, that he had done Pierce a great wrong, and he expected that it would send him (De Haven) to the Penitentiary; and that De Haven said he would not have sworn as he did, had it not been for Perrine and Benson; and that De Haven stated that he would go and get down on his knees to Pierce and ask his forgiveness, if he thought Pierce would allow him so to do. These statements were all made to deponent since he testified against Myers and Pierce.

T. O. CARTER.

Sworn and subscribed before me this 14th day of August, 1867. S. C. McCANDLESS, Clerk of the U. S. District Court, W. D. P.

Formal Opening of the Reed House, Erie, Pa.

For three years past there has been in course of construction at Erie, Pennsylvania, a first-class hotel, which was completed a few weeks since, and christened the "Reed House," in honor of the owner, Gen. Chas. M. Reed. The building is a commodious one, being four stories in height and occupying an area of 17,225 square feet. It has three fronts—one on North Park Place, one on French, and another on Fifth street, the main entrance being on Park Place. The exterior of the building presents a most handsome appearance, and, besides supplying a want long felt in the way of hotel accommodations, adds to the attractive appearance of the city. The building with its western connection with Park Row, an elegant block fronting on Park Place, forms a hollow square, leaving a court 30 by 132 feet. The court has been excavated to the same depth as the basement of the building, and beneath the pavement which covers it immense water tanks are located, from which water is pumped up to the receiving tanks located at the roof of the house, and from these distributed to the various rooms in the building. In the basement are located the boilers for generating steam for the engine and for other purposes, bath rooms, fuel vaults, water closets, etc.

The main floor is occupied principally as store rooms, of which there are seven in number, besides the office of the First National Bank at French street and Park Place. The office and Park front entrance are also on this floor, as well as the ladies' entrance from French street. The barber shop, coat room, wash room, and drinking saloon adjoin the office on the French street side; and the store rooms, baking apparatus, &c., are on Fifth street. The office is L shaped, and is handsomely fitted up. The hall leading from the main entrance is nineteen feet wide and ninety-two feet long, while the main room is forty feet long by thirty-nine in width. The floor is laid with tile, and comfortable chairs and sofas are provided for the comfort of guests. From the center of the office a broad stairway leads to the second floor, while communication from the office with the private entrance is had through a hall ten feet wide and thirty-three in length.

Ascending the staircase to the second story, we find ourself in a hall sixteen feet wide by one hundred and sixty three feet long, lighted, through ovals, by means of ventilated sky-lights from the roof, with a main staircase leading above, and an auxiliary stairway at the western or right end. On the left is the ladies' stairway and the main hall leading to the dining room. In front are four elegant parlors, twenty by thirty-six feet, the doors so arranged that they can all be thrown open, making a magnificent room thirty-six by eighty feet, with high, richly ornamented ceilings, richly carpeted floors, and windows draped with the utmost taste and luxury. The dining room, which occupies forty by ninety feet on the Fifth street front, with a ceiling sixteen feet six inches high, has a row of bronzed iron Corinthian columns, with full capitals and Egyptian bases, through the centre, with elegantly designed stucco cornices and centre flowers on the ceiling. There are also seventeen suites of rooms on this floor, all of which are furnished with water—some of them with baths, and as elegantly finished as the rooms of any hotel to be found. The kitchen, pantry, cooking range, pastry room, crockery rooms, &c., are also on this floor, with which direct communication is had from the office and Fifth street.

The ladies parlors, two in number, are fitted up in magnificent style, the carpets being of silk velvet, while the furniture, mirrors, window drapery, etc., are of the most elegant description. The parlor for gentlemen adjoins the ladies parlors, and is fitted up in the same style of elegance. Adjoining the latter parlor, and communicating with it as well as with the ladies parlors, is a reading room, furnished in a manner similar to the parlors, every arrangement for ease and comfort being provided.

The dining room is provided with walnut tables, and will seat comfortably three hundred guests. The room is well lighted, thoroughly ventilated, and is provided with every convenience. Immediately in the rear of the dining room is the cooking department, comprising several rooms. This department is furnished with steam cauldrons, heating table, ranges, broilers, cake baker, and all the utensils which experience could suggest. The facilities are calculated to provide food for five hundred persons per day.

The third and fourth stories are furnished in a style similar to the second story, with the exception of carpets, most of which are Crossley's tapestries, with a few English Brussels. The beds throughout the house are furnished with the Pallisse mattrass, comprising two mattrasses to each bed, in which is combined all excellencies of the spring and best hair mattrasses.

The ball room is located on the third floor at an elevation of three feet above the level of the other rooms,—its dimensions and height of ceiling being the same as the dining room beneath it.

The house is perfect in all its details, and cannot be surpassed in elegance of furnishment and arrangement for the comfort and convenience of its guests. The cost of the structure, independent of the ground on which it stands, exceeds three hundred thousand dollars.

THE OPENING.

The citizens thinking such an establishment a credit to their beautiful city, determined to celebrate the occasion of its opening in a fitting manner. With this view a meeting of the leading citizens was called, committees appointed to make arrangements, and the time for the opening fixed for Thursday evening last. Invitations were sent to prominent citizens of all the cities and towns along the lakes, as well as in the interior of the State, and a general invitation extended to the citizens of Erie to participate. The committees seemed determined to make the affair a creditable one in every respect, and the success on Thursday evening surpassed the most sanguine expectations.

At an early hour in the evening the hotel, and adjoining buildings, were brilliantly illuminated, and the almost countless number of lights that brightly sparkled in the numerous windows formed an altogether grand and beautiful spectacle. At nine o'clock the company began to assemble, and an hour later the halls were crowded with beauty and fashion, representatives being present from all the leading cities of the East and West, as well as from the towns located on the railroads connecting with Erie. About ten o'clock the presentation of guests to General Reed, the owner of the house, and his lady, commenced, and continued for over an hour. The company was a most brilliant one, the toillettes of the ladies being of the most elegant description. After the presentation, the company repaired to the spacious ball room, where dancing was indulged in to music discoursed by Mehl's band.

Supper was announced at one o'clock and when the dining room was thrown open, the tables presented a most handsome and tempting appearance, being spread with every delicacy of the season as well as the more substantials, while beautiful pyramids, immense boquets of flowers, and other decorations, added to the beauty of the scene. The supper was a most sumptuous affair, and although over one thousand persons were at the tables during the evening, the stock of provisions showed no signs of exhaustion. After supper, dancing was resumed, and was kept up uninterruptedly until four o'clock on Friday morning, when the brilliant assemblage dispersed to their rooms in the building and to their homes, tired but happy.

The affair was a complete success, and reflects creditably upon the Committee of Arrangements, and also upon Messrs Baum & Co., the lessees of the hotel, who are not only gentlemen, in every sense of the word, but they "know how to keep a hotel."

Committed.—John Eymer and Edward Berwell, charged before Justice Abraham, of Elizabeth township, with peddling without a license, were arrested Saturday, and after a hearing committed to jail in default of $500 bail for their appearance at Court.

TWO TABLE SPOONFULS of the Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

AN INTERESTING LETTER is published in the Medico-Chirurgical Review, on the subject of the Extract of Sarsaparilla in certain affections, by Benjamin Travers, F. R. S., &c. Speaking of those diseases, and diseases arising from the excess of mercury he states that no remedy is equal to the Extract of Sarsaparilla; its power is extraordinary, more so than any other drug I am acquainted with. It is, in the strictest sense, a tonic with this invaluable attribute, that it is applicable to a state of the system so sunken, and yet so irritable as renders other substances of the tonic class unavailable or injurious.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, August 24, 1867.

The New York stock quotations to-day, as received by Mr. P. R. Mertz, were as follows: Gold, 140¼; Eighty-one bonds, 111¼; Five Twenties, 1862, 113¾; Five Twenties, 1864, 109⅝; Five Twenties, 1865, 110⅛; 5-20's, new, 108¼; Seven Thirties, 107⅝@107¾; Ten Forties, 102⅝. Stocks—Erie Railroad, 70⅝; Cleveland & Pittsburgh, 93; Chicago and Rock Island, 102⅝; Chicago and Northwestern, 45⅝; Chicago and Northwestern preferred, 70; Fort Wayne Railroad, 104¼; Michigan Southern Railroad, 81¼; New York Central, 105¼; Reading, 104⅜; Western Union Telegraph Co., 43¾. Mining shares—Corydon, 1,30; Gregory, 6,65; Quartz Hill, 1,70; Smith & Paramalee, 6,45; Quicksilver, 27¼; Ohio and Mississippi Certificates, 26⅝.

The opening quotation for gold was 141; it gradually declined to 140¼, and closed at 140⅛, with light transactions. The exports are inconsiderable, and the speculative demand has ceased. Government securities are a little firmer, but transactions are light. For Railroad shares the market has advanced from 1 to 1½ per cent; market strong, but the transactions are very small. The market is only sustained by large holders who are forced to keep purchasing in order to be enabled to run up prices still higher. The daily operators at the exchange are careful in their purchases, but all believe in higher prices, especially the low priced speculative shares are singled out by this class of operators; having but a small margin at stake, their purchasing power is greater, and their chances to gain a few points are better than in the high priced clique stocks.

Mining shares are again firmer, with more doing. The low prices of most of the gold companies have attracted buyers from the interior, and shares of producing companies are bought up by parties to speculate on their advance. Although the prospects in a great number of companies are not very favorable at present, the yield of gold has largely increased, and the mines have been more profitably worked. The coming spring will no doubt witness some excitement in mining stocks if money is at all to be had for speculation in these shares. Business dull, but money easier.

—In noticing the progress of funding the public indebtedness, the New York Daily Bulletin, representing financial and commercial interests, says:

"The funding of the first issue of seven-thirties, amounting to $300,000,000, has been very successfully accomplished, only about $10,600,000 remaining unfunded at the time of maturity and the most of these will be funded before the 15th of September. Of the compound interest notes about $4,100,000 were paid off at the Sub-Treasury in this city last week, the balance will be paid as fast as presented. We believe that the manner in which these short obligations have been managed by the Secretary meets with general approval, and has inspired a confidence in his ability to fund or pay off advantageously the whole of the remaining seven-thirties and the compound interest notes at the proper time. When the whole war debt of the United States is consolidated into long bonds it will be much more easily managed by any financial officer than in its present shape, made up of various sorts of obligations quite dissimilar in character. As to the rumors of a possible change in the Secretary of the Treasury, we cannot believe that there is any truth in them, and this opinion is based as much upon the fact that Mr. McCulloch has done nothing to render himself obnoxious to either political party as that he has generally managed so well his department."

And in mentioning the correspondence which we gave in our last paper, relative to the alleged frauds in the Treasury Department, the Bulletin remarks:

"It was reported in the street to-day that the author of the misrepresentations and his aiders and abetters, are laboring both here and at the capitol to manufacture a sort of public opinion adverse to the present head of the Department, whose displacement is earnestly desired by certain parties here, having personal or political purposes to promote. It was even stated that their favorite candidate for the succession is now in Washington, working adroitly in the interest of his friends and of movement which enlists all their energies. It would, doubtless, be advantageous to these friends and this movement if such a change in the administration of the national finances could be so strongly effected as to give to the more influential originators of the scheme early practical control of the Department and its patronage. Such control would be to them an element of great power, financially and politically; to gain possession of this source of influence, they are prepared to persevere in their intrigues; with zeal and means proportioned to the value of the object which they desire to accomplish. We feel assured, however, that Secretary McCulloch is not at all likely to be disturbed in his position. He fills it, and discharges its duties, most acceptably, not only to the President, who esteems him and confides in him as a friend and reliable counsellor, but also to the public, who have no sinister schemes to advance, and who only demand that their official agents shall be as capable, upright and truly conservative, as the present Honorable Secretary has shown himself to be."

A telegram from Fort Ann, New York, says: The Lamb Bros., proprietors of the extensive woolen factory at this place, have failed. The amount of liabilities is understood to be $130,000. It is supposed that the cause of the failure is similar to that which induced the late collapse of the Unadilla Bank—excessive and persistent borrowing on the part of the managing men, with heavy losses in their operations. An assignment has been made by the Lamb Bros. to a wealthy citizen of this town. The Lambs lost a factory by a few years since; the building now closed was erected upon the site of the old one. It was from this factory that the supplies of clothing were drawn with which Billy Wilson's Zouaves were first uniformed. It will be remembered that those uniforms held out for at least 24 hours.

—The fact that the western farmers are hurrying their grain to the market, with a view to the immediate realization of prices, has the tendency to stiffen the money market, though for the present we continue previously quoted rates. Our western exchanges have for some days reported an active money market. We learn that the pressure to realize causes caution among discounters of produce paper, who naturally say that the large supplies must precipitate a heavy fall in prices. Much must depend upon the celerity with which the crops are distributed. If a large amount of grain should be exported early, or should the purchases for consumption be liberal, the money advanced upon the early receipts will soon be released and again thrown upon the market. But whether such a result may be anticipated, in the event of a declining market for produce, is questionable.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, August 24, 1867.

The general markets have been moderately active during the past week, the volume of business, in the aggregate, being fully up to that of the week preceding, but there is still plenty of room for improvement. The operations are mainly of local character, and as the demand for nearly everything continues to be restricted mainly to supplying immediate wants, we have but few round transactions to record. So far, however, as values are concerned, there are no changes in any leading articles worthy of special notice.

GRAIN—Wheat is firm and in limited supply but unchanged—we continue to quote at $2,10@2,15 for prime Penna and Ohio Red. Oats firm but unchanged; sale of 200 bush, on track, at 55c; 1 car do at 56c. Corn is quiet but firm, and may be fairly quoted at $1@1,05 for mixed to prime Yellow. Rye is in demand, with sales at $1,20@1,25. It is reported that there have been small sales of new Spring Barley, for future delivery, at 90c.

FLOUR—The market continues quiet and dull but without quotable change—stock in this market is light and receipts limited. We continue to quote, in store, at $11,00@11,05 for good to choice Spring and Winter Wheat, and $13,50@14,50 for fancy brands. Rye Flour is still quoted at $8@8 25.

PROVISIONS—There is a continued fair demand for Bacon, and we can report regular jobbing sales at 12½c for Shoulders; 14½@15½c for Ribbed and Clear Sides, and 21@21½c for Sugar Cured Hams. Lard is quiet but steady at 13@13½c for prime kettle rendered, in tierces, and 13½c@14c, in kegs. Mess Pork may be quoted at $24@24,50.

GREEN APPLES—The market is pretty well glutted, and with a very limited demand, prices are steadily declining; we now quote at $2@4 per bbl—we heard of an offer to sell a pretty good lot of Apples, on track, at $2.

PEACHES—The arrivals by express from the east continue large, but by the time they get here they are generally in very bad condition, and shippers, on this account, are suffering severely. Prime Peaches, in good condition, sell readily at $2.25@2.50 per box.

BUTTER—There is a continued good demand for prime fresh pail and firkin Butter, and holders experience no difficulty in selling at 24@25c.

EGGS—Continue very dull, and with fair receipts, and a supply somewhat in excess of the demand, prices are barely maintained—at 12½@13c.

CHEESE—Is quiet but steady with regular jobbing sales at prices ranging from 12½@15c, according to quality.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, August 24, 1867.

CRUDE—To-day, like Friday, was a perfect blank, so far as operations were concerned, not a single sale of any character reported. That the market is dull, no one will gainsay, and what is worse still, there is but little prospect apparent at present of any immediate improvement. There is no demand whatever for spot oil, while for future delivery sales could not be effected unless concessions were made, and thus far holders do not seem disposed to submit to any material decline, preferring rather to hold on and take the chances for better or worse, feeling pretty sanguine that there will be a time when they can sell, and that all they have to do is to wait patiently for it to come round. In the absence of sales, we quote nominally at 10c for spot oil, and the same figure will apply to specified months, though, as we have already intimated, there are no buyers at present, and while we do not believe that oil could be sold at this price, it is doubtful whether sellers could be found at anything less.

REFINED—There was not a single operation in bonded oil to-day, at least, there was none reported, and while the market is dull and weak, prices are without quotable change. Spot oil is still quoted at 27½@27¾c; September at 28¾@29c; October at 30@30¼c, and November and December, together, at 31c. Compared with the early part of the week, spot oil has undergone little or no change, while for the late months, prices are lower. It is somewhat remarkable to have such a complete stagnation at this particular season of the year, following as it did right on the heels of a brisk market and a marked advance. The only cause we can assign is that the markets in this country were unduly inflated, prices here having been advanced relatively above those prevailing in Europe, and it looks now as though the present depression will continue until there is an improvemen there or a still further decline here. This, however, is only surmise, and it may be that now is the time for those who are disposed to speculate to "pitch in."

RIVER NEWS.

The river very unexpectedly commenced to swell again about noon yesterday, and at four o'clock last evening the Monongahela pier marks indicated four feet six inches. Both rivers appeared to be swelling, and it is possible that to-day there may be water enough to let out some of the tow boats with light draught barges. This last rise was about as unexpected and unlooked for as the one which preceded it, and it is evident that there must have been heavy rains at the headwaters of both the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers.

The Maggie Hays was towed up from the Marine Hospital, where she has been laid up for some time, and several towboats succeeded in getting up to the landing with their tows from different points below, where they were forced to lie up in consequence of low water. The Leni Leoti arrived and cleared for Parkersburg. The Delaware, it is expected, will take her place in the line this week, and will probably leave on Wednesday.

The Lorena has been nicely repainted and repaired, and is now in excellent condition for the fall business, and looks like a new boat. Capt. Robinson is having a coat of paint put on the Kate Robinson, which will add materially to her appearance. The Glendale is in tip-top condition for business, and Capt. Hare intends loading for St. Louis as soon as there is anything like a show for getting through.

Capt. Rogers' new boat for the New Orleans and Mobile trade, is progressing finely, and will be ready for hostilities early this fall. She is a neat and substantial looking craft, and we doubt not will prove a success. Capt. Moore's new boat for the Parkersburg trade is rapidly approaching completion.

The Jas. Gilmore, a new towboat, to take the place of the Dolphin, which boat it will be remembered was destroyed by fire, is now at the wharf receiving the finishing touches. She is owned, we understand, by the same parties who owned the Dolphin.

There are a large number of towboats laid up at the wharf, and there are quite a number about Manchester on both sides of the river. The following is a pretty full list of all that are laid up at the Monongahela wharf: Tom Farrow, Hawk, Whale, Lion, Leopard, Star, Eagle, Arrow, O. H. Ormsby, Hornet, Warner Resolute, N. J. Bigley, Samson, Fox, Wild Cat Fearless, Little Alps, and Niagara.

Capt. Jesse Dean, of the Messenger, and clerk Fisher, of the Leonidas, left Cincinnati for Pittsburgh on Friday night last. The America has been chartered to take the place of the T. J. Pickett, in the Cincinnati and Manchester trade.

The Ida Stockdale and Carrie arrived at St. Louis on Thursday from Fort Benton, and the Luella was expected to arrive on Friday. The Silver Lake left St. Louis on Thursday for Cincinnati.

The Great Republic goes on the ways Mound City, after the Quickstep, and R. E. Lee come off.

The larboard engine, shaft and pitman of the wrecked Missouri, have been successfully removed, and are in excellent condition. The starboard machinery will be removed by the end of the week. The machinery is in first-rate condition—much better than it was expected to find it.

The cotton press men of New Orleans have combined together and determined to charge 75c per bale storage for the first sixty days and 25c for the succeeding months—or per bale storage for three months. Hitherto it has been but 50c the season. The cotton men of New Orleans have been trying to drive away the cotton trade from that city in various ways.

The Shreveport Southwestern, of the 7th, says: "The steamer Cottle, which has been lying at our wharf for the last five or six months, was sold at sheriff's sale last week for $3,100. She was purchased by some parties from New Orleans, who held heavy claims against her. The Cottle arrived at New Orleans on Wednesday last, and is now lying at Algiers, near the ferry landing, awaiting further developments.

John S. Beggs, of New Albany, has received a pilot's license, and has a berth on the Ella Faber.

A late Memphis paper says: Many of our citizens are acquainted with the parties to a fatal difficulty that recently occurred at Friar's Point, Mississippi. Mr. Geo. Williams became wild and reckless under the influence of several days hard drinking, and having heard that he would be discharged from the employ of C. G. Bobb & Co., of which Mr. Fred. Morrison was manager, he late at night went to Morrison's room. After a few words conversation, Williams said: "I heard you said that if I got drunk again you would discharge me." Mr. M. replied that he had said so. Williams then turned away from Mr. M. and walked off a few steps, at the same time saying, "discharge and be d—d," and immediately wheeled around so as to face Mr. Morrison, and advanced a few steps, fired directly in his face, the ball striking the lower part of the jaw, near the chin, and lodging in the back part of the neck. Mr. Morrison staggered back a little, and drawing a revolver, fired at Williams, but missed him. Quickly firing again, the bullet reached its mark, entering the breast of Williams a little to the right of and just above the region of the heart. After receiving his death wound, he caught hold of the mantle board, by which he was standing, and fired two more shots at Mr. M., who had also snapped his pistol three times at the deceased while the latter was firing the last two shots. Mr. M. knowing that his pistol would not fire again, got out of the house as speedily as possible, and went to the doctor to have his wound dressed. Mr. M. had barely got outside of the house before Williams fell to the floor, uttered one groan and immediately expired.

The Cairo correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial writes as follows:

Robert Kitson, of Wheeling, formerly an employee on the circus steamer Coosa, died last night of some low fever contracted while on river. He was kindly cared for by the proprietors and others of Carter's steamboat bakery, at which house he died. This is but one of hundreds of cases calling loudly for a marine hospital at Cairo. More boats land here, and more sick steamboatmen are put ashore here, than at any other port of entry in the West, and yet Congress allows them to depend solely on the charity of the people of Cairo. This charity, it is true, has never been withheld, as hundreds of steamboatmen willingly testify, but when we see marine hospitals erected by the Government at such places as Napoleon, Paducah and Evansville, and none at Cairo, where there is vastly more need for one, our citizens justly think that something should be done for our relief. Even when the cholera was at its worst last summer, we allowed steamboats to put off at this point such of their officers and crews as needed attention, until it began to be manifest that we could do so no longer with safety, and the only cases of death from that disease, with ten or twelve exceptions, during the whole time of its presence in Cairo, were of those so put ashore, or of those who contracted the disease from them. We do not complain of the erection of hospitals at the cities above mentioned, but merely of the fact that none is erected at a point in so much more need of one. Almost every boat which passes those points passes Cairo also, while hundreds of boats from St Louis to Memphis or returning, have no point provided by Government at which they can put off their sick between the two ports, and it is well known what fatal effects are frequently produced by keeping the sick on board of crowded steamers. Boats coming up stream from points below Memphis are in the same difficult position after leaving Memphis, and there is now, since the destruction of the Paducah Marine Hospital, no accommodation for the sick steamboatman until he reaches Evansville, on the Ohio, or Saint Louis on the Mississippi. Yet the hospital dues are regularly deducted from the wages of crews, and as regularly collected by the Custom-house officers. Where does their money go?

GENTLEMEN—We ship you, to-day, by railroad, a safe of your make, for a few repairs. The safe went through the disastrous fire that occurred here on the 6th of March last, burning our store and warehouse, and we are glad to inform you that the papers taken out of the safe after the fire were not harmed in the least. We did not suppose any safe, especially so small a size, could possibly stand such a fire, and when we discovered the papers all safe and sound, we were agreeably disappointed. We will give you an order for a large size safe when we get into our new store. Truly yours,
